

GLOBAL WELLNESS FORUM

Uniting the World in Truth, Wellness, and Freedom

GWF in Action

From Florida’s historic weather modification law to briefings on Capitol Hill, the Global Wellness Forum is leading a movement for truth, wellness, and freedom.

The Global Wellness Forum (GWF) led one of the nation’s greatest medical freedom victories this year—banning and criminalizing geoengineering in Florida. Working with allies across the country, we’re mobilizing advocates in 35 states and taking on issues suppressed by corporate power. Today, we’re expanding our reach to influence federal legislation and build a united movement to stop these programs nationwide.

Whether it’s ending weather modification, removing toxins from our water, or protecting the most vulnerable from dangerous medical practices, GWF’s mission stands at the intersection of science, ethics, and human rights. Our leaders—Sayer Ji, Dr. Edward Group, and Marla Maples—alongside our councils of experts, are building a future where public policy is guided by truth and the people’s will, not corporate agendas.

We are not here to react to the world as it is. We are here to create the world as it should be.

— Marla Maples, Co-Founder

A Future Worth Fighting For

This year, the Global Wellness Forum has stood shoulder-to-shoulder with advocates, scientists, and policymakers to create the kind of change many thought was impossible. Together, with our coalition partners, we’ve turned grassroots voices into legislative victories, expanded our expert councils, and brought national attention to issues once hidden in the shadows.

We were founded on a shared vision: a world where public policy serves the people, not profit; where science is guided by ethics, not industry influence; and where every individual can live in sovereignty, health, and harmony with nature.

As we look ahead, our mission is clear: we will continue to unite truth-tellers, hold our leaders accountable, and create a new standard for wellness — one rooted in transparency, integrity, and respect for all life.

We invite you to join us, not as observers, but as participants. Because the future we want is built by the actions we take today.

With gratitude and determination,

When the World Looks Back, We Look Ahead

The Global Wellness Forum’s mission isn’t to repair a broken past—it’s to build the future we already know is possible.

Much of the modern world is oriented toward retrospection. Governments pour over old data, industries cling to established systems, and public discourse loops endlessly through yesterday’s crises. This backward gaze can feel safe—it offers the illusion of certainty, the comfort of familiarity. But it also has a cost: it binds our energy to the past, and leaves little room to imagine what lies ahead.

Psychologists have long observed that where attention goes, energy follows. A society consumed by revisiting its wounds inevitably prolongs them. Forward movement requires a different posture—one that sees possibility before it is proven, and invests in structures that don’t yet exist. This is not naïve optimism; it’s a discipline. It is the practice of holding a clear vision of what’s possible and working deliberately to bring it into being. For the first time ever, public opinion, policymakers, and the legal system are now aligning in our favor. We must stay in the present, while simultaneously building the future.

Sayer Ji, Chairman GWF with Scott Tipps, President of National Health Federation at the Codex Alimentarius meeting in Seoul, South Korea to defend health freedom, food sovereignty and informed consent for the United States.

The Global Wellness Forum was born from this discipline. Our founders and councils share a conviction that the systems governing health, environment, and human rights can be remade—not by patching what’s broken, but by designing what will endure.

We work as architects of the future, drawing from expertise in medicine, science, law, and advocacy to build frameworks that honor human sovereignty and ecological balance.

Across 16 expert councils, our members operate at the intersection of research, policy, and grassroots mobilization. They create blueprints for ethical governance, develop safeguards for scientific integrity, and champion reforms that place people above profit. Each effort is grounded in the belief that the future we need already exists in potential—it only needs to be made tangible.

In a climate where institutions are slow to change, GWF moves with intention. We convene those willing to imagine beyond the present moment, and to act as though the better world they see is not only possible, but inevitable. That is the psychology that drives us, the energy that sustains us, and the purpose that defines who we are.

Uniting Truth-Tellers Across the Globe

The Global Wellness Forum connects doctors, scientists, legal minds, advocates and grassroots leaders to challenge corruption and create systems rooted in transparency, ethics, and human dignity.

In a world where misinformation can spread faster than truth, the Global Wellness Forum stands as a gathering place for those who refuse to be silenced. Our members are doctors, scientists, legal experts, environmental advocates, educators, and grassroots leaders — united by a shared belief that health sovereignty, ethical science, and human rights are non-negotiable.

At the heart of our work are 16 expert councils, each focused on a critical area of wellness and freedom. These councils connect some of the brightest and most principled voices in their fields — from environmental health and medical ethics to food safety, technology policy, and beyond. Together, they research, advise, and lead targeted campaigns that challenge corruption, expose hidden harms, and shape policy solutions that put people first.

GWF councils are more than advisory groups. They are action hubs — gathering evidence, briefing lawmakers, training grassroots advocates, and building coalitions that cross political, cultural, and national lines.

“The councils give GWF the ability to move on multiple fronts at once — each is an engine for change.”

— Executive Director
Aimee Villella McBride

Through this collaborative structure, we can respond rapidly to emerging threats while advancing long-term initiatives that protect future generations. Whether it’s advocating for environmental integrity in Florida, fighting to end harmful medical practices, or safeguarding informed consent in digital health, our councils ensure that every action is guided by both expertise and ethics.

In a time when so many are looking for leadership they can trust, GWF’s councils offer a rare combination: authority grounded in science, and courage grounded in conscience.

What We Do

The Global Wellness Forum is a think-and-do tank advancing truth, wellness and freedom through education, policy, and alliance.

Education & Outreach

We educate, connect, and mobilize communities through bold outreach and truth-driven media. By uniting organizations, experts, and advocates, we create a powerful coalition advancing health freedom and sovereignty. Our initiatives inspire action, fuel legislative progress, and generate a ripple effect that expands from grassroots engagement to global awareness.

Policy Reform & Legislative Action

We champion policy reform and legislative initiatives that uphold truth, transparency, and health freedom. Through coordinated advocacy, research-backed proposals, and coalition partnerships, we influence public policy, mobilize citizen engagement, and pave the way for laws that serve people—not special interests.

Global Alliance & Strategic Partnerships

Our expert councils of thought-leaders, doctors, researchers and advocates along with our strategic partners of other mission-aligned organizations, help us to expand impact. Together, we coordinate initiatives, share data and expertise, and amplify one another’s efforts to advance health freedom globally.

The Impact

Florida Becomes First State to Criminalize Geoengineering

Florida has become the first state in the nation to criminalize geoengineering and weather modification, passing legislation that will carry felony penalties of up to five years in prison for offenders. The new law also mandates that airports report suspicious aerial activities, with enforcement provisions taking effect October 1, 2025.

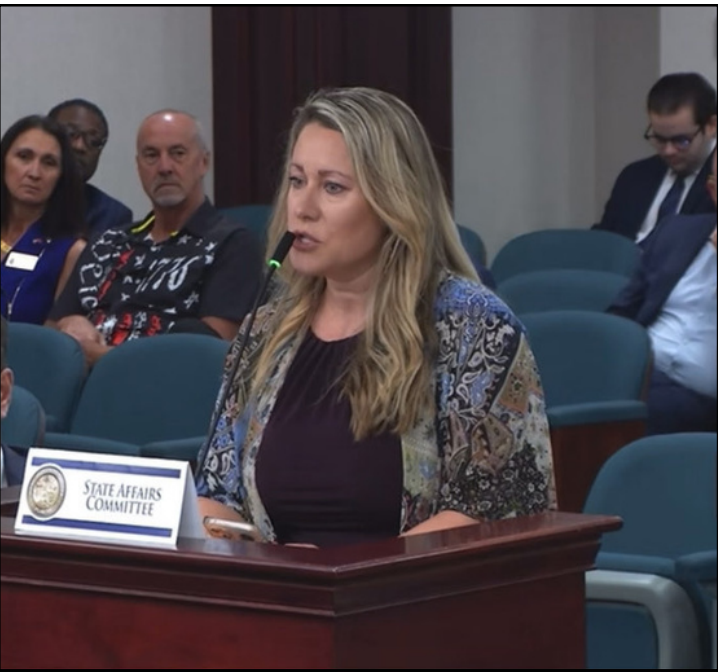

The Global Wellness Forum played a pivotal role in advancing this legislation. From the bill's first hearing to the final vote, GWF mobilized the state of Florida in support of the bill. Marla Maples, Aimee Villella McBride, and Jacquie Jordan testified at the bill's first hearing. Aimee then went on to testify at two additional hearings and spoke on the Capitol steps during a statewide MAHA Advocacy Lobbying Day, helping revive the bill when it was stalled and close to dying. The work for GWF drew national attention and energized grassroots supporters.

Behind the scenes, GWF coordinated a massive public outreach effort in partnership with Stand for Health Freedom, resulting in nearly 100,000 emails to state legislators. These citizen voices, combined with the on-the-ground testimony of advocates and experts, helped break through political gridlock when the bill appeared stalled.

National Spotlight on GWF's Geoengineering Ban Efforts

GWF Co-Founder, Marla Maples joined Real America with Dan Ball to discuss Florida's groundbreaking law that criminalized geoengineering. She highlighted how this victory protects clean air, water and our health and serves as a model for other states.

This wasn't just a policy win—it was a signal to the rest of the country that citizens can set the terms for what happens in our skies, says Aimee Villella McBride.

The win in Florida built massive momentum as 35 states now have similar legislation proposed. GWF has been instrumental in providing legislative and policy guidance, strategy support at both the state and federal level. Now, with a grassroots toolkit in development to further propel progress, plus impacting policy at the federal level by shaping the new Clear Skies Act recently introduced in Congress by Rep. Marjorie Taylor Greene, GWF is working at the local, state and national level on this issue.

Beyond the legal precedent, this victory represents a broader assertion of environmental sovereignty—a statement that public health, environmental integrity, and transparency take precedence over covert experimentation and corporate agendas. For GWF, Florida's new law is both a milestone and a launchpad, marking the beginning of a coordinated national movement.

ENVIRONMENTAL SOVEREIGNTY

Florida's new law asserts the right of states to safeguard public health, protect environmental integrity, and demand transparency—rejecting covert experimentation in our skies.

CLEAR SKIES

State and Federal Action

Florida's landmark bill criminalized geoengineering and now over 35 states are pursuing similar bills—with GWF supplying the advocacy tools and legislative support to advance them, as well as working at the federal level.

The Global Wellness Forum is an international alliance of doctors, scientists, legal experts, and grassroots leaders committed to restoring health sovereignty, protecting human rights, and creating ethical systems that serve life—not profit.

CAMPAIGNS IN MOTION

Protecting Life

Where It's Most at Risk

How GWF's Ban ECT Initiative Targets Harm Hidden in Plain Sight

At GWF, protecting life means confronting dangers others overlook — especially those harming the most vulnerable. Electroconvulsive Therapy (ECT) is one of them. Performed daily in U.S. hospitals and clinics, it sends up to 460 volts through the brain to induce a full cerebral seizure. While promoted as treatment for severe depression, bipolar disorder and catatonia ECT's is known to cause permanent memory loss, brain injury, cardiac events, and even death in some patients.

Never tested under modern FDA safety standards, ECT devices bypassed regulation in 1976 and were later downgraded to "moderate risk" (Class II medical device) despite decades of evidence to the contrary. Courts have already held manufacturers liable for failing to warn patients of severe adverse effects, yet the practice continues — often without true informed consent and with wasteful taxpayer funding.

"The right to health includes the right to be free from treatments that cause harm," says GWF co-founder Sayer Ji. "Ending ECT is part of building a medical future that truly heals."

For GWF, this is not a fringe debate but a human rights crisis. Through our Council on Psych Rights & Trauma-Informed Care, we aim to end coercive, harmful, and unethical medical practices. Banning ECT is part of our broader mission: uncover hidden harm, confront it with science, law, and advocacy, and ensure care never comes at the cost of humanity. ECT is another example of regulatory capture, deceptive science, and a system putting profit over people. ECT represents the ultimate violation of informed consent and human dignity.

BAN ECT INITIATIVE Strategic Path to Change

Expose the truth through peer-reviewed research, legal evidence, and survivor testimony.

Educate lawmakers, regulators, and the public with briefings, hearings, and media outreach.

Eliminate government and insurance funding for ECT.

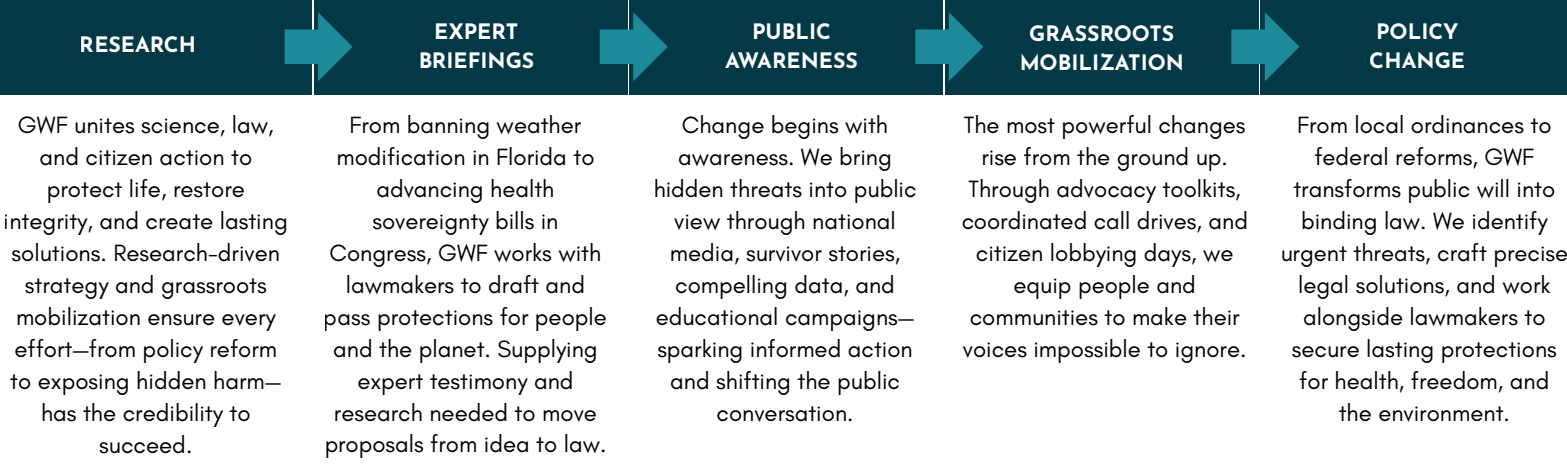

Enact federal and state laws prohibiting its use.

Empower survivors through recognition, resources, and legal pathways to accountability.

THE GWF WAY: FROM RESEARCH TO REFORM

An inside look at how GWF turns evidence into action—through policy, partnerships, and people-powered movements.

Building on Wins. Expanding the Vision.

The Global Wellness Forum is about more than responding to the moment. Every campaign, every council initiative, every policy victory is part of a bigger map — one that leads toward a future where life, truth, and freedom are non-negotiable.

In the months ahead, we are expanding our federal efforts, increasing our presence on Capitol Hill, and supporting state-level campaigns in dozens of legislatures.

Our councils are developing new white papers for expert briefings and toolkits for grassroots advocates and community leaders, providing step-by-step guidance to organize locally, meet with lawmakers, and advance meaningful policy.

Globally, we are strengthening alliances with organizations that share our commitment to health sovereignty, environmental integrity, and ethical governance. The work ahead will require the same blend of strategy, courage, and cooperation that has fueled every win so far. Our commitment to

"Humanity heals when we remember our divine connection to nature."
– Marla Maples

From federal advocacy to neighborhood meetings, from international partnerships to local victories, our direction is clear: forward. And the path ahead is one we walk together.

The Fight Against Pesticides

Pesticide manufacturers must be held accountable for health and environmental harm. Through policy education, lobbying, and public campaigns, GWF highlights the links between chemical exposure, biodiversity loss, and chronic illness. The goal: pass legislation that puts safety and ecological balance above corporate profit.

EYES ON WASHINGTON Scaling Our Federal Influence

Florida's wins proved what happens when expertise meets citizen action. Now, GWF is bringing that momentum to Washington —meeting with lawmakers, delivering expert testimony, and working across the aisle to advance health sovereignty, environmental integrity, and human rights. Our councils ensure every conversation is grounded in science, ethics, and the voices of the people.

TOOLKITS FOR CHANGE Grassroots Advocacy in Action

Policy change starts in living rooms, not just legislative chambers. GWF's advocacy toolkits help communities turn concern into action—raising awareness, creating momentum, organizing events, and speaking with confidence. Local action fuels state and federal victories.

GRASSROOTS MOBILIZATION

An International Wellness Movement
From the U.S. to the world, GWF's work on environmental protection, medical ethics, and informed consent is inspiring global partners. Together, we exchange strategies, amplify victories, and spark change—proving local action can have worldwide impact.

FEDERAL PRIORITIES TO WATCH

Bills aligned with GWF's mission that we need to support and create momentum behind:

WHO Withdrawal Act (HR 3839) – Permanently ends U.S. membership in the World Health Organization.

PREP Act Repeal (HR 4388) – Restores the right to sue for harm caused by medical countermeasures.

Vaccine Carveout Repeal (HR 4668) – Ends special legal protections for vaccine manufacturers.

Pesticide Injury Accountability Act (S2324) – Ensures those harmed by pesticides like glyphosate and paraquat can sue the companies responsible.

The DEFUND Act of 2025 (HR 1498 and S 669)– the Disengaging Entirely From the United Nations Debacle.

A Bold Step for Clean Water: Florida Bans Fluoride

Florida has become the second state to ban fluoride in public water—a major public health win. Partnering with Stand for Health Freedom, the Global Wellness Forum provided testimony, mobilized citizens, and shared evidence on fluoride's health risks, especially for children. GWF views this as a model for nationwide efforts to secure clean, chemical-free drinking water.

Pharma Liability Bill Reintroduced: HR 4668

HR 4668, restoring the public's right to hold pharmaceutical companies accountable, has returned to Congress. The Global Wellness Forum supports the bill, which seeks to overturn decades of legal protections shielding manufacturers from lawsuits. GWF is educating the public and rallying bipartisan support, framing this as a key issue of consumer rights and health sovereignty.
